

ADDRESS TO THE FIRST CONGRESS OF THE MAC

Comrades. We have went through a lot of struggle to arrive where we are today. I want to say a few words about MAC that many newer members don't know.

As a person, I was frustrated about the fact that the imperialist nation "communists" were ruling all over the internet. If one wants to be a serious person, he must understand that Internet plays a crucial role. The period of leaflets and posters glued in the streets and light poles is of course, not over. But a new front has been opened, and this is the internet. It is there that the bourgeoisie is able to wrestle supremacy immediately by simply multiplying their own propaganda, opinions, ideology e.t.c, in a place that they can artificially make 100 pieces saying the same thing under a different site name, while we need to struggle, to volunteer to even manage to make one. The internet is therefore, more and more growing, and we can't afford to give even this one seat to the bourgeoisie. The internet is therefore, both a weapon of the bourgeoisie, but one of our allies too. Why? Because it is a way for us to connect without spending money to traveling procedures, and without the awkward feeling that a more or less shy person would get from meeting someone from another country. We can all connect and share opinions, and even organize propaganda campaigns and push our ideology to the population. Of course, it does not replace ground to ground organizations, but is an important aspect especially for ideological publications.

As i said, i was frustrated on how one of the best platforms to do this interaction, Reddit, was essentially had its "left" subs rulled by a bunch of American degenerates, overtly fixated in the "science of the anus", and in reality thinking that the working masses, the real working masses, are a bunch of Hominidae. How quick they are to spread the word of the democratic party in local form for the non-americans to see? Very quick. And i thought, that we need our own space. Thus, i created a subreddit by the name r/EuropeanSocialists wanting to connect us.

Of course, i did nothing more than create the subreddit. Nothing else. Everything else was a work of a collective. Guided by Marxism-Leninism and democratic centralism, our collective had its first break when the liberalistic elements of our organization, the elements influenced too much by the Leftist Aristocracy, broke away due to our stance on the British inter-communist conflict over "identity politics". At the time, we were 6 people. Me, Martin Sadr, Ivan Slovec, Portorevin, Odarin, and Stasi. We held this vote back in December 2019, just 3 months after the creation of the sub and 2 months since me, Sadr and Stasi were making this collective a reality. We voted 4 against 2 to hold this line, and thus both Slovec and Stasi refused to accept this vote, and they split. They allied with the Leftist Aristocracy rulling reddit, the teams behind r/communism, r/socialism, r/moretankiechapo e.t.c, to essentially embargo us. r/Genzedong and r/informedtankie quickly followed, subs made by the same people.

Anyways, Stasi and Slovec told us the following: With this line, you will die.

Quite the contrary, it was our determination to be principled that led to our current success. The Leftist aristocracy hates us, the actual communists and workers who happen to be on reddit loves us. In short, we have achieved our aim: our enemies don't want us, our friends and the people whom we work for love us and our message.

Fast forward almost two years later and here we are, having a strong collective of different comrades from all over the world. Each one of us is their own product, but our common views on reality and our determination to fight imperialism brought us together.

This is for sure, a team that even if we are banned by everywhere, we will still keep fighting undeterred. The more the enemy attacks, the more we clench our teeth and push and push and push against the enemy.

Comrades. There are hard times for us. The more reliable we become, the more we are pushed to write more and more about the events occurring in the world. We can say with a smile in the face, that both our Belarusian, Palestine, Russian, and Afghanistan campaign were successful. But the more volume appears, the more the need for new members emerges.

In my opinion, since I am elected as a Politburo member, and this is for what I will push, this is the steps we need to work on till the next congress:

- 1) Outsourcing out of reddit: This entails, making platforms to spread our word more widely. This could include but not limit itself to sites, blogspots, facebook, twitter, instagram, every single space we will be able to share our work
- 2) Recruiting new members. As i said, the volume of work increases but our resources arent. We need to focus on getting at least 5 new members before the next congress. 5 members would be the very least; we need people. 5 is the minimum. If by January we havent recruited more, it will be a failure of our recruitment policy. Thus, i will personally, as PB member, push to put our resources into recruiting, even if it means a semi-pause towards our other work. We will make it our main goal to recruit and not write or cover extensively the events of the world. It would be a necessary phase.
- 3) If all the rest are covered, we need to keep working thought the commissions (Palestine, Russia, e.t.c) and make new ones to better cover the events of the world which arent covered by the big media, left or right.
- 4) Get in touch with other groups and if possible, parties.
- 5) Find ways to create a common fund to pay for host server if we make a site e.t.c
- 6) Get to 10,000 subscribers in ES, and 5,000 for both AS and AsS.

These comrades, are in my opinion the steps we should follow till the next congress. If at least half of these aren't succeed, i would consider this Politburo a failure.

But i want to say something to our members; recently, there were many people who resigned. Some for what they claim to be, ideological reasons, some because they don't have time. This is completely natural, and don't be afraid. The more of a true collective we become, the more people who don't see it as fit to try to work one few hours per week (or who don't agree with our Marxist lines) for this collective will avoid our group. It is completely natural and healthy. Of course, i am not saying this out of spite for the comrades who resigned. They did work in their own ways, but they themselves said that time does not allow them to be part of the MAC anymore. We respect this, and we kiss them in both cheeks.

But comrades, don't be afraid. We will struggle, there will be times we will be down and times we will be up.

Before i close, i want to write down below a quote from Stalin from his work "The Political Strategy and Tactic of the Russian Communists", written in 1921, exactly 100 years ago. It seems so far, but is in fact so close.

The agitation against the war that we conducted among the workers and soldiers at the beginning of 1917, under Kerensky, undoubtedly resulted in a tactical setback, for the masses dragged our speakers off the platforms, beat them up, and sometimes tore them limb from limb; instead of the masses being drawn into the Party, they drew away from it. But in spite of the tactical setback, this agitation brought nearer a big strategic success, for the masses soon realised that we were right in agitating against the war, and later this hastened and facilitated their going over to the side of the Party. Or again. The Comintern's demand for a dissociation from the Reformists and Centrists in conformity with the twenty-one conditions, undoubtedly involves a certain tactical setback for it deliberately reduces the number of "supporters" of the Comintern and temporarily weakens the latter; but it leads to a big strategic gain by ridding the Comintern of unreliable elements, which will undoubtedly strengthen the Comintern, will weld its ranks more closely, i.e., will enhance its power generally.

Stalin was proved right. Indeed, it was under his policy that Communism became a reality and not what some people called a "peculiarity" of the vodka drinking Russians.

This writing expresses exactly my feelings. Bolshevik agitators were tore limp by limp by the same people they shed blood for, and what do we risk? Worst case the imperialists deciding to ban us from their platforms! As long as we are alive and united, we will figure out the way to make new platforms and new publications.

Comrades, MAC will grow stronger in the long term. A month may look weaker than the previous one, but there are days where years happen, and thus it is inevitable that our committment can only lead us to be more and more relevant and sucesfull. The only way we can fall is if we dissolve oursleves, and if we do that, it will be a sign of our weakness and not the sign of our lines being wrong.

The Mensheviks were not right, they were simple put, weak. They were the strongest for years, and then the small but principled Bolsheviks overcame them. No one speaks of Mensheviks anymore, of Martov's and of Tsereteli's or even for Plekhanov's and Kautsky's. Ask 100 random proletarians and no one will know them. But ask these 100 random proletarians if they know Lenin and Stalin and most of them will nod their heads.

If someone were to ask the same thing 110 years ago, it would be the opposite. The fame of the Martov's, of Plekhanov's e.t.c lasted for a decade or two, the fame of the Stalin's and Lenin's for a century.
